Structured Trade Finance

Structured trade finance is a specialised activity dedicated to the financing of supply chains. Finance is used extensively in the commodity related sectors for the benefit of producers, processors, traders and industrial end-users to meet a diverse range of funding requirements.

Through structured trade finance, NCMSL provides financial solutions outside the traditional method of bank financing. The major focus of the transaction is managing the risk and the value of the underlying assets.

Under structured trade finance NCMSL provides services to the following categories:

- Processors: Focused on providing financial structuring for sourcing the raw material requirement.
- Traders: Providing funding facility to the trader for sourcing of the commodity.
- Corporates: Tailored for products to meet the needs of commercial institutions.

Procurement and Sourcing

NCMSL has undertaken procurement of wheat and paddy under Minimum support price scheme (MSP) on behalf of Food Corporation of India. We have experience of procurement of more than 2 million MT of commodities. In the process we have build a large network base of farmers in all major agri producing states. We offer “composite solutions” to the traders, processors and corporates where in we provide assurance of procurement of commodity as per the laid down quality parameters, primary as well as secondary storage of commodity and logistic operations, both by rail as well as road, across States in all the major commodities.
